INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this document is to provide a set of artistic expectations, size parameters, and standardized sample scroll texts for awards given in the Barony of Gryphon's Lair, Kingdom of Artemisia. Scrolls are an original work of art and should be approached as such, allowing the calligrapher and illuminator as much freedom as possible. Scrolls are also meant to represent the ideals of period art and be produced in a timely manner without excess strain on artisans, so some specificity can be applied. Scrolls in the SCA vary in ornament from extraordinary works of art to simple legal documents. Typically, Baronial award scrolls are among the simpler scrolls done. Clear, neat calligraphy, with a small amount of illumination works well but the style and complexity are the artist's purview. For the purposes of this document a scroll has several parts: the opening, the name of the recipient, the name of the award, perhaps a description of the purpose of the award, the date and the closing (signatures). When you are comfortable with designing your own scrolls, the order of the parts may be varied somewhat. Each part is treated separately below, along with scroll layout and how assignments are made.

Award ceremonies will also be included, when applicable. These ceremonies may provide the scribe with background concerning the creation of the order, and its premier member. These details may come in handy for the advanced scribe when wordsmithing custom texts. Award Ceremonies in total should not be included in the scroll text.

ASSIGNMENTS

Assignments for upcoming or backlogged scrolls can be obtained from the current Baronial Scribal Coordinator, a position of honor selected by the current Baron and Baroness. When a scroll is completed, please deliver the piece to the Baronial Scribal Coordinator, or to the Baronial Herald, who will see to obtaining signatures and delivery in court or, in the case of backlogs, delivery directly to the recipient.

You do not need to have an active assignment to practice your craft or create scroll blanks, which are either illuminated pages with space for calligraphy to be added later, or illuminated pages with spaces within the calligraphy for recipient names and dates to be added later.

SCROLL LAYOUT EXPECTATIONS

It is expected that scribes will make every reasonable effort to utilize materials that reflect the appearance of medieval artwork. This may include period and medieval materials as cost and comfort/experience of the scribe are able. It is preferred that gouache or period pigments and permanent inks be used and that acrylic paints, felt – tipped pens, and such materials be avoided. Pergamena, parchment, vellum, Bristol board, cold-press watercolor paper or other acid-free ground is recommended.

It is expected that scribes will attempt to produce illumination from a period exemplar or original artwork that is in keeping with one of the many period styles unless otherwise outlined in a commission/assignment. It is recommended that the scribe attempt to find out something about the recipient if the scribe is comfortable personalizing the scroll, particularly for a backlog.

It is expected that scribes will make every reasonable attempt to match calligraphic style with illumination style.

It is expected that scrolls will be prepared with at least a 1" margin around any art or text to allow for trimming to fit a frame or to cover any edge damage which may occur during transfer, presentation, and transport.

It is encouraged that scribes do their own wordsmithing. While there are a number of prepared texts in the following pages and examples of phrases to splice into a text there is strong support for creativity in text as there is in illumination. It is encouraged to use the texts in this handbook as exemplars and, if comfortable, to expand and personalize the scroll texts as suits the award, its purpose, or the persona or preferences of the recipient.

To encourage framing and reduce the cost thereof, it is recommended that the size of the face of the scroll should equal the standard mat openings for standard frame sizes [See below.] Use large margins, generally 1" around the face to allow for safe handling and transfer as well as ease in framing. It is also recommended to leave at least 1/4" margin within the face to offset the work and not crowd it against the mat.

Frame Size	Mat Opening	Paper Size
11" x 14"	7.5" x 9.5"	8.5" x 10.5"
16" x 20"	10.5" x 13.5"	11.5" x 14.5"
20" x 24"	15.5" x 19.5"	16.5" x 20.5"
24" x 36"	19.5" x 29.5"	20.5" x 30.5"

Leave plenty of room for signatures at the bottom. Use guidelines marked lightly in pencil when laying out calligraphy and remember to erase them when you're finished. Using a T-square or Ames lettering guide to mark the guidelines will help insure they are straight. You might want to use different color ink for the recipient's name and, possibly, for the name of the award. Plan ahead to make the text balanced on the page.

SCROLL TEXT LAYOUT AND WORDSMITHING

OPENING

Begin the scroll with one of the following phrases or an approximation:

- Be it known to all whom these presents come, that...
- Be it known that We, [fill in the names of the Baron / Baroness] do hereby recognize...
- Let all know that...
- See here and know that...

Appendix A includes additional sample openers starting with every letter of the alphabet, so that you might incorporate a specific letter of your choice.

NAME OF AWARDING CROWN OR CORONET

Give the first names and titles of the awarding crown or coronet, and the name of the lands they govern. Last names are set aside during a reign, and titles are used instead.

NAME OF RECIPIENT

After the opening, include the name of the person receiving the award. The scribe should insist on getting the full name for the scroll. Don't be tempted to take responsibility for getting the names right – check with the Baronial or Kingdom Herald.

DESCRIPTION

The scroll needs to describe the reason for the award, so include a phrase like

...by reason of [his/her] [artistic endeavor/martial prowess/ unfaltering service]...

The detail will be something like “his skill at brewing” or “her skill as an archer on the field of battle” or “his long and devoted service.”

NAME OF AWARD

Now identify the award. Be certain it matches grammatically with the rest of the text.

- ...is recognized as a member of the [Award Name]...
- ...is hereby created a member of the [Award Name]...
- ...shall be known as a member of the [Award Name]...
- ...and do hereby award [him / her] the [Award Name]...

DATE

The date will be the date at which the award is/was given, not the date of the scroll creation. One of the following forms or an approximation can be used:

Done this [number] day of [month], at [event] [Anno Societatis/A.S] [year in Roman numerals]

Done this day, being the [number] of [month], [Anno Societatis/A.S] [year in Roman numerals] being [modern year] in the Common Reckoning/Common Era.

Anno Societatis [year of the Society] is calculated from May 1, 1966. If you are unsure what year it is, consult <http://www.sca.org/links/calendar.html> for clarification. It also lists the Roman Numerals.

CLOSING

The Baron and/or Baroness need to sign the scroll, so leave a space for a signature[s] at the bottom. It is optional to write the word “Baron” and/or “Baroness” directly underneath the signature space and also optional to draw a line for the signature[s].
